Dulles Describes Soviets' Position As "Ambiguous"

WASHINGTON, March 4 (A)-The United States today rejected Russia's bid for a summit conference on Soviet terms.

Secretary of State Dulles buried it under a barrage of words like unacceptable, unscrupulous, ambiguous, spectacular, fraud, hoax. fiction, flamboyant, at his news conference.

The Soviet proposal was laid down in notes last Friday to the United States, Britain and France. The Soviets called in essence for a foreign ministers meeting in April with a prior commitment to a summit conference in June. There would be no discussion of German reunification. There would be equal representation between East and West at the foreign ministers meeting. Billy Mitchell "As it stands, the position of the "Calculated risk" seems to be a popular phrase for old-fashioned "gamble." But there's no place for either in preparing or dispensing pharmaceuticals.

Ever notice the letters U.S.P. or N.F. on a medicine label? The letters represent two official books that are recognized by federal law - the United States Pharmacopoeia and the National Formulary.

Together, they are the pharmacist's "bible." They give approved standards of the quality, purity, and potency of most medicinal agents.

Whatever your prescription calls for, we are prepared to fill it.

of what they consider to be co-challenge.

Premier Said probably is the only man in Iraq capable of holding the country to its pact commitments. Despite his age - he is 69 - and his ailments, Said is the strongest political figure in the country he ruled as a virtual dictator for years.

Said occupied the premiership 14 times in the turbulent history of a nation created after World War I from the land once known as Mesopotamia. For all practical purposes throughout those years. Said was Iraq and Iraq was Said. Most other leading politicians in the country are beholden to him in one way or another. None seems strong enough to attempt to fill his shoes.

Nuri Said is hated by Arab nationalists, who accuse him of being a willing tool of Britain and colonialism.

Said's appointment as premier once again is likely to stir new violence in Iraq and Jordan, both ruled by the Hashemite family. It is likely also to be a signal for even more Egyptian-Syrian pressure against Baghdad and Am-

Piedmont Seeks New Site For Garbage Dump

Would Eliminate Grade Crossing

PIEDMONT - The Town of Piedmont is considering renting land from the P. and G. Coal Compaiy, located about one mile west of Bloomington for use of dumping garbage

James Bissitt, street commissioner reported at the regular meeting of the Council recently with Councilman Joseph Maybury, presiding, that he had negotiated with the company about it. Piedmont could lease the land for $180 per year, the same fee that Westernport pays for the same purpose.

The present place the town uses for dumping garbage is across an unprotected railroad crossing about two miles below town. In January a garbage truck was struck by a train killing two town employes and demolishing the truck. The town is paying Mervin Smith $75 a year for the use of his land and the lease expires March 31. He has asked for an increase of $50 when the new lease is made which would raise the cost to $125 per year. To reach the proposed new Methodist Men site, trucks would only have to site, trucks would only have to cross one railroad crossing which Hold Breakfast

The new truck the town has meeting in the new dining room rented, reduced the number of of the church Sunday morning trips to the garbage dump in two loads, councilmen were told. Councilman Bissitt called at- devotions. Carl Barr introduced tention to traffic conditions in the guests.

Will Mr. Murphy Lose His Shirt?

In November, 1942, a young State Department official, Robert Murphy, went ashore on the North African coast from a small boat in the dead of night. His mission was to contact the French and pave the way for a peaceful entry for the invading American forces seeking to oust Hitler's army from the African continent.

In that secretive boat trip, which Murphy took with General Mark Clark, a pair of pants was lost before the mission was completed.

Now Murphy is again visiting the North African coast, this time hoping to make a "beach head" for peace in the angry strife between France and Tunisia. No pants would be lost this time, but the chances seem to be greater that Murphy will lose his shirt.

The trouble started when the French bombed the Tunisian border village of Sakiet-Sidi-Youssef on the grounds that rebels from Algeria had fled there. France agreed to mediation by the U. S. and Britain. Deputy Under Secretary of State Murphy and his opposite number, Britain's Middle Eastern trouble shooter, Harold Beeley, were sent.

The hope was that not only could the French-Tunisian breach be healed but that the way might be opened for solving the Algerian problem. That possibility now seems to be fad-

The French have drastically narrowed the field of the mission, implying they will listen only to suggestions. Algeria is ruled out of the discussion. And France has served notice that she will never give up treaty rights to her Tunisian naval base of Bizerte.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

What About America?

Max Freedman, the Washington correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian." writing on Dean Acheson, says of the former Secretary of State:

. . . He understands the sensitive nationalism of Canada, the need of Latin America for economic development, the shaken greatness of England, the tragic eclipse of France, the thwarted passion of Germany for national unity. It is because he understands these deep national moods, more important than the successive policies which are their brief and transient embodiment, that he is able to discuss various problems with a detachment and wisdom which have become almost unknown in Washington in the past five years. And he understands Russia, too . . .

All of this is delightful, but is it not also the function of a Secretary of State to understand the United States? I am not saying that Dean Acheson is a foreigner in his own country, gazing upon its monuments with the jaundiced eye of a critic from a tired European nation. I am saying that Max Freedman ignores the essential necessity of a statesman or a politician to know his own country, to sympathize with the aspirations of his own people. This must come first if he is to amount to anything at all.

The implied criticism is of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, because in the very next sentence,

"He (Acheson) knows that it is dangerous, when it is not merely futile, to base American conduct on speculations about Russian 'sincerity' or to read moral lessons to the Kremlin on preachments drawn from the United Nations Charter

And why not draw upon the United Nations Charter for preachments? Soviet Russia is a signatory of the United Nations treaty and therefore is responsible to abide by the terms of the Charter. It does not seem logical that the United States should be held to the terms of this and other treaties and that Soviet Russia should be applauded by the seemingly liberal "Manchester Guardian" for violating treaties. As Senator Styles Bridges said:

"The Russians are engaged in another intensive campaign to have us once again abandon our prerequisites. The Soviets refuse to permit a meeting of foreign ministers because they dislike dealing with Mr. Dulles—the man who was appointed by the President with the concurrence of the Senate to represent the United States in international affairs. "I am unwilling to surrender the selection of our Secretary of State to Bulganin and Khrushchev.

Senator Bridges called attention to the fact that after 19 top level conferences between the United States and Soviet Russia, 40 agreements were made and only three were kept by the Soviet government. The Senator

"In the light of this experience, Mr. Dulles is welladvised to use care before entering upon new negotiations. If he did not learn from this experience, we would have real cause to doubt his intelligence.'

The curiosity of this phenomenon is that Europeans call American nationalism "isolation," whereas they regard Canadian nationalism as perfectly sound; they regard the "need of Latin America for economic development" important but object to American participation as "exploitation." What are we to do? Are we to commit national suicide? Are we to reduce ourselves to a supply station for European policy? Are we to reduce ourselves to a satellite of Soviet Russia?

It would be interesting to read a "Manchester Guardian" program for America and America's future. Lester Pearson of Canada seems to have such a program, namely that 170,000,000 Americans should submit to the leadership of Canada with its 16,000,000 population. Lester Pearson would make of his country a leech living upon its richer neighbors. Surely the Canadians are too proud a people to accept such umbrage. Nevertheless it is out of such stirrings of antagonism between two principal nations who have always lived in peace and cooperation that Lester Pearson got a Nobel Prize. A Picasso Dove would surely have been more fitting. What the current attitude of Europeans and Canadians could do, if it became sufficiently vehement, is to stir a contrary movement in the United States, an "America First" movement, a "Buy American" movement. The recent hearings on the tariff are startling not so much that they raise the question of a higher tariff, but that they demand protection. We might go back to a sufficiently high tariff to show that we are

Postal Rate Discrimination And Freedom Of Press

WASHINGTON-Only 22 years ago the Supreme Court of the United States, in a unanimous opinion, ruled that governmental authority in America must never be used under the guise of the taxing power to penalize publications of large circulations as against those of smaller circulation. To do this was held to be a violation of the First Amendment to the Constitution, which forbids the enactment of any law that abridges the freedom of the

Yet last week in the United States Senate, 28 Democrats and 5 Republicans voted to do that very thing when they demanded higher postal rates be imposed on publications of larger circulation. Fortunately, 39 Republicans and 18 Democrats combined to defeat the attempt. But there still remains a provision of the same kind in the bill originally passed by the House of Representatives and which soon will be considered by a conference committee of both Houses.

This correspondent remembers well the 1936 decision of the Supreme Court because it was a big news story at the time. The State of Louisiana, under the pressure of its Governor, the late Huey Long, had enacted as a reprisal against the larger newspapers of the state a law dividing all newspapers into two classesthose with less than and those with more than 20,000 circulation. A special tax of 2 per cent was levied on the gross receipts on all advertisements published in the newspapers of larger circulation, but this was not applied to the newspapers of smaller circula-

The Supreme Court of the United States said the effect of the tax would be "to curtail the amount of revenue realized from advertising" and would involve

By David Lawrence

"a direct tendency to restrict circulation" and then added: "It might well result in destroying both advertising and circulation."

What is most interesting to note about this form of censorship is that it has been tried many times before, in fact as early as 1712 when the British Parliament imposed a special tax on all newspapers and upon advertisements. Justice Sutherland, who wrote the Supreme Court's opinion in 1936, reviewed the history of such laws in England and said that these taxes constituted one of the factors that aroused the American colonists to protest. and that the American Revolution "really began when, in 1765, the American colonies.

such imposts as "taxes on knowledge." Speaking of the Louisiana law's attempt to classify newspapers by circulation and to put a special tax on advertising, the Supreme Court opinion says:

"It is seen to be a deliberate and calculated device in the guise of a tax to limit the circulation of information to which the public is entitled by virtue of the Constitutional guaranties. A free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To allow it to be fettered is to fetter ourselves.

Senator Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, Democrat, said bluntly to the Senate last week that stamps for newspaper duties to rates on large-circulation magazines than on smaller ones Justice Sutherland referred to "would penalize a magazine because it had a large circulation." He added:

"If a publishing firm is able to build up a circulation of one of its own magazines to 3,000,000 or 5,000,000 copies, should we penalize it because the public wants to buy that magazine? . . . I do not believe Congress should legislate in that way.'

Publishing companies of all kinds, of course, must pay the same general taxes as any other profitmaking enterprises. There is no doubt that the Post Office Department needs more money. and certainly the newspapers and magazines should pay the increased costs for transportation of their issues in the mail when it is conclusively ascertained by an impartial commission of accountants, authorized by Congress, just what such costs actually involve. But discrimination in postal rates as between publications of the same kind is a violation of the Constitution not only because it deprives them of equal protection of the laws under the Fifth Amendment, but because it is also an infringement on the First Amendment.

The weight per copy- and not the total circulation-says Senator Monroney is the only sound way to measure the rates that should be paid for postage by publishers.

It is significant that in the debate last week there were various references made by Senators to the editorial views held by publications which they dislike, and the inference was left that some Senators were voting in reprisal against certain publications of larger circulation of whose content they disapprove for political reasons. Thus is the Bill of Rights trampled upon by some of the very men who take pride in calling themselves "liberals."

U.S. Intelligence Reports Russia Wants 10-Year Truce In Cold War

WASHINGTON - Russia's sudden counter-switch to a foreign minister's conference came just as two counter-switches were being made secretly by U. S. officials. They are as important as the sudden reversal by Mos-

Counter-switch No. 1 was an opinion by Allen Dulles, able head of Central Intelligence, that Russia sincerely does want a truce in the cold war. Hitherto Dulles, brother of the Secretary of State and a powerful opinionmolder for the White House, has not agreed with Harold Stassen that Russia really wanted disarmament.

Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow has agreed with Stassen and so have some of the under officials in the State Department. Now the potent recommendation of Allen Dulles joins them that Russia would like to ease tensions for as much as ten years. Dulles is not so cheerful about what may happen after Counter-switch No. 2 - Last week the State Department cabled secret instructions to Ambassador Thompson in Moscow to sound out the Russians on their conditions for a summit conference. Thompson was told to use his own discretion in quiet talks with the Soviet foreign office, but to make it absolutely clear Eisenhower would never agree to a summit conference unless the Kremlin agreed to some kind of preparatory talks at a lower level.

By Drew Pearson

This was a switch for the Eisenhower Administration which hitherto had demanded a foreign ministers' conference.

Hardly had Thompson delivered this message than the Soviet foreign minister came back with his switcheroo to a foreign ministers' conference.

Chief conclusion to be gained from all this maneuvering is that a summit conference will definitely be held this summer. It may be restricted, but it will be held.

Note - Stassen in his final report to the President suggested holding the summit conference in New York at UN headquarters with UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold sitting in; then inviting Bulganin and Khrushchev to the Gettysburg farm for personal talks. One problem Eisenhower faces in a summit conference is the difficulty of prolonged conversations. They

"Bidet" General

Inside fact about the recall of General John B. "Ack-Ack" Ackerman from one of the prize posts in the Air Force for spending too much money on frills, was that the general was trying to head off a divorce.

Married to one of the most beautiful and more wealthy women of Washington, Faith Donaldson d'Oench, the general had been separated when he was transferred to the Philippines. Mrs. Ackerman remained in Washington and for a time it seemed doubtful that she would Finally he persuaded her to effect a reconciliation and come to Manila. In Manila, Air Force headquarters were not exactly as in the Ackermans' well-appointed Virginia home along the banks of the Potomac, hence the orders for expensive furnishings, bidets, other extras, which aroused the cupidity of other Air Force wives at Clark Field.

General Ackerman is considered one of the most brilliant young officers in the Air Force. He was picked by superiors as a man likely to end up as chief of the Air Force. Tragedy is that because of his attempt to keep a beautiful wife happy in tropical

Benson's Meat Friend

The meat lobby is so anxious to keep secret its relations with Secretary of Agriculture Benson that meat lobbyist Aled P. Davies tried to retaliate last week against the Chicago Daily News reporter who reported that he had advised Benson on how to answer attacks by Republican Congressmen.

Lobbyist Davies was in the National Press Club bar boasting how he helped write the statement Benson issued to the press, and how Ezra had phoned him for advice.

But when Chicago newsman William McGaffin started checking on Davies' boasts. Davies phoned to say that all statements made in the Press Club bar were off-the-record.

"Hog-wash," replied McGaffin, the newsman who dared ask Ike about his expensive helicopters. Later Davies announced he was filing a complaint against Mc-Gaffin with the Club's board of

The incident might be kissed off as Press-Club bar bickering were it not for the fact that Davies was appointed an official adviser of the Agriculture Department, and the Secretary of Agriculture has consistently favored the American Meat Institute for which Davies is the registered lobbyist. When Benson supported the price of hogs, he left out the clause inserted by Secretary Brannan whereby the meat packers had to buy hogs from farmers at parity prices. Again when Benson supported beef prices, he left out the clause whereby the meat packers had to pay farmers parity prices. Thus the price of pork and beef went down on the farm. while the price of pork and beef went up to the housewife. The meat packers, which Aled Davies represents, made the money. That's why it's news when Benson phones Davies to spend the evening drafting one of the most important statements Benson

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop *

The horses came out of the spongy paddock onto the track. They followed a cowboy on a lead pony. They walked slowly, some with heads down, some in a schottische. The flanks glistened in the warm Arizona sun and the horses saw the far-off mountains to the west and they saw the thousands of people banked high in the stands at Turf Paradise. The ones on whom I bet were fatigued. They didn't look tired. They looked bright and sprightly and they tossed the little monkeys of men as they trotted toward the gate. The loudspeakers played Frankie Carle's "Girl Friends." My horses were the intelligent ones. They understand the futility of racing. They reasoned that the faster they ran, the more frequently they would have to race. The more slowly they ran, the quicker they would be sent to stud.

High in the clubhouse, I sat at table 708. Perhaps it should read 7-0-8. My hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Heenan. Mrs. Heenan is dark and pretty. Mr. Heenan, an old friend, is pretty ugly. He is an editor on the Arizona Republic now. When I knew him well, he was an editor on the Newark Star-Ledger. We sipped coffee and studied the charts and listened to the tips of Orien Fifer and his intense wife Vi. Mr. Fifer is the managing editor of the Arizona Republic and, like Heenan, dresses Western and sometimes wears a little leather lariat instead of a tie. All of the people in Phoenix like to live big and slow. They do not understand anyone in a hurry and they sat in 76 degrees of sun in open neck shirts, and tiny beads of perspiration sparkled on their molasses necks.

I bet on Delightful Lady. She wasn't. Rip the Turf didn't. Irish Green was a hunch. A bad one. Maid of Glory turned out to be modest. Theretheygo was the best named horse on this beautiful track. It is so beautiful, with Peking ducks on ponds and purple mountains in the background, that one can hardly feel the wallet undergoing a slimming treatment. The eyes are drunk with the view and the basso roar of the crowd as the hooves ripple thunder in the stretch.

I kept thinking of Damon Runyon, the quiet man. He liked horse racing and he once said that you can get 10,000 men to watch 10 horses run, but you could not find 10 horses who would watch 10,000 men run. This is not a mark of intelligence on the part of the horses. A nag is not as smart as a mouse. A piece of wind-blown paper can throw him into panic.

The stands were jammed with men in high heel boots wearing big Stetsons off their foreheads They lined up at the betting windows silently and they bet grimly. Their women are inordinately pretty and they dress summery and casual. Down at the rail Mexicans and Indians stood watching the big odds board and their women always seemed to be looking up at the men waiting for a glance or a friendly word. It was here, at Turf Paradise, that I met the first horseplayer who swears that, economically, he is ahead. This unusual person was my host. Heenan is out at the track three times a week and he carries his own charts, full of symbols written in red crayon and blue. He not only knows more about the ancestry of the horse than his own, but he can tell you how fast the horse ran in yesterday's workout, whether he shines at short races or long ones, whether he has a nodding acquaintance with his jockey, and whether his heart is in his work. He has picked six winners in seven races and he wins the Quinella as though he devised it. In a world of well-dressed suckers, Mr. Heenan is the one man who can pay the rent with his winnings. He has a disturbing habit of saying, for example, that he likes number four horse and he will talk number four until-excuse me-he is hoarse. When number six wins, he looks at you sheepishly and produces a win ticket on six.

On the day, it cost me $93 to sit in the sun and listen to the little gems of wisdom. This is not bad if it happens once a year, as it does in my case.

I have never left Tijuana or Monmouth Park or the big flat track in Caracas with more money than when I arrived. This does not hurt because I have a philosophy that there is only one species of animal more stupid than a horse, and I am a member of it.

Just before the last race, I murmured the horseplayer's prayer: "Dear God, please let me break even. I need the money." It didn't do any good. . .

Shaffer Scores 22 For Highlanders In "Rubber" Contest

ACCIDENT, Md., March 4 -Southern High School's Highlanders, coached by Carl Schoonover, won the Garrett county Class B basketball championship tonight by defeating Northern High School in the third game of their series here tonight before a capacity crowd by the score of 61-55.

The "rubber" game was necessitated after the teams had split even during the regular season. The Oakland quint had won the first game at home, 57-53, but the return game here last week by the score of 62-58. Northern won the toss for the third game and selected its home floor as the site for tonight's contest.

Tonight's crucial battle was close throughout, Northern leading at the quarter, 14-12, Southern holding a 26-25 edge at intermission and a 42-41 advantage at the close of the third stanza. Shaffer Heads Scorers Kenny Shaffer, Southern center, was the game's high scorer with eight baskets, 6-for-8 at the foul line and a total of 22 points. Martin and Wine contributed 15 and 10 points, respectively.

Ward Humberson and Dick Spear sparked the Northern attack with 15 points each and Tommy Schroyer collected 13.

Southern outscored Northern 23 to 21 in field goals and converted 15 of 22 foul shots to the Huskies' 13 out of 29.

Stemple of Southern fouled out 1:59 before the close of the third period. Terry Colaw of Southern and Schroyer bumped heads in the final period and when tempers flared both players were ejected by the officials. It was the fifth personal foul called on North and South commiserated with each other as the incident was blamed on hard luck. Actually that is not the case. The presence of the nine of clubs in the North hand shed a strong light on the proper way to play this holding.

It is to be observed that if East has any four clubs he must stop the suit, so there is no need to protect against a singleton honor in the West hand. But if West has four clubs headed by the ten the entire suit can be picked up if the ace is retained in dummy. A low club from dummy produces the queen and is taken by Pass 1 diamond South's king. The jack of clubs of dummy's nine delivers four

W.Va. Farmers Getting Better Product Prices

CHARLESTON, March 4 (A) -The Federal-State Crop Reporting Service said today that mid-February prices received by West Virginia farmers were slightly higher than a month earlier. At the same time, farmers purchasing feed found prices unchanged or slightly lower for most types. Most all feeds were from 15 to 40 cents lower than in February of 1957. Hog prices received by farmers in the month ended Feb. 15 increased to $19 per 100 pounds, $2 above the same period last year and up 30 cents from the Jan. 15, 1958, level. Beef cattle, bringing an average of $17.20, were up 30 cents from mid-January and $4.40 from last February. Broilers returned an average of 21.5 cents a pound to growers, equal to January levels but up two cents from last year. Egg and milk prices reflected seasonal declines in mid-February

Six-Cent State Cigaret Tax Is Killed

House Committee Had Approved Bill

By MARTY SUTPHIN

ANNAPOLIS, March 4 (A) - The House of Delegates killed tonight a bill to levy a uniform state igaret tax of six cents per pack and to eliminate all local levies. The move was opposed by five Southern Maryland counties which grow tobacco. The most persuasive argument, however, was from delegates of counties which now do not tax cigaret and would have to under the proposal for uniformity. They argued this was not the time to add taxes beyond those necessary to balance the budget.

The bill was requested by cigaet distributors who told the committee it would produce $10,-351,440 annually to be redistributed to subdivisions

Clarence T. Porter, 55, formerof Eckhart, who has been confined in the County Jail here for more than 20 months, yesterday was adjudged by Chief Judge George Henderson in Allegany County Circuit Court to be still guilty of contempt of court.

Judge Decides

But instead of remanding him to the County Jail again, Judge Henderson ordered Porter into the custody of the warden of the Maryland House of Correction. The judge said Porter will remain at the House of Correction until he turns over to his wife $4,217, which the judge stated was due her as her share from the sale of certain United States
